

EDGE™ Port Replication Housing

10 rack units, holds up to 11 EDGE-CP8B-PRH or EDGE-BLNK-PRH panels

CORNING

EDGE™ port replication housing is optimized to support storage area networks (SAN) and local area network (LAN) switches. When deployed in a cross-connect structured cabling solution, EDGE port replication housing provides one-to-one port management replication of high-density switches and SAN directors. Designed to mimic the director/switch port layout, EDGE port replication housing simplifies patching, as ports are easier to find and can be managed at a single administration point. Modular construction allows line card panels to be installed horizontally or vertically and optional blank panels provide customization to match unique vendor equipment layouts.

Features and Benefits

EDGE strain relief locations in rear of housing

Allows for quick installation of trunks

Mimics director/switch layout of line card format

Patching is simplified

Flexible housing configuration

Allows re-use of housings and components

Modular panel configuration

Allows a single panel to support multiple port count director line cards

One housing for all configurations

One housing/panel/module type for all directors/switches

Shallow depth (9")

Enables installation in back-to-back configurations and custom frames

Flexible integrated strain-relief for trunks

Enables mounting of trunks internally to housing
